

IRELAND ABOARD: POLITICS AND PROFESSIONS IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

Oonagh Walsh, editor

Contents

Oonagh Walsh Introduction	9
I IMAGININGS
Declan Kiberd Republican self-fashioning: the journal of Wolfe Tone	16
Cliona Ó Gallchoir Orphans, upstarts and aristocrats: Ireland and the idyll of adoption in the work of Madam de Genlis	36
Liam Harte Immigrant self-fashioning: the autobiographies of the Irish in Britain, 1856-1935	47
Peter Denman Two versions of home and abroad from the Pennisular Campaign: Vandeleur and ‘The Burial of Sir John Moore’	62
Kathleen Costello-Sullivan ‘Who is Kim?’: Rudyard Kipling and the haunting of the colonial imagination	71
II PROFESSIONS
Louise Miskell ‘The heroic Irish doctor’?: Irish immigrants in the medical profession in nineteenth-century Wales	82
Elizabeth Malcolm ‘What would people say if I became a policeman?’: the Irish policeman abroad	95
Diane M. Hotten-Somers Moral maids and materialistic mistresses: Irish domestic servants and their American employers, 1850-1920	108
Nini Rodgers Richard Robert Madden: an Irish anti-slavery activist in the Americas	119
Oonagh Walsh ‘Sketches of missionary life’: Alexander Robert Crawford in Manchuria	132
III TRANSMISSIONS
Martin J. Mitchell ‘In general, they do not answer well’: Irish priests in the western lowlands of Scotland, 1838-50	147
Máirtín Ó Catháin Fenian dynamite: dissident Irish republicans in late nineteenth-century Scotland	160

Lindsay Proudfoot
Landscape, place and memory: towards a geography of Irish identities in colonial Australia	172
Ian McClelland
Worlds apart: the Anglo-Irish gentry migrant experience in Australia	186
Jason King
Ireland abroad/broadening Ireland: from famine migrants to asylum-applicants and refugees	202